Letter from the Editor

The first issue of Canadian Military History, [Vol. 1, Nos. 1 & 2, Autumn 1992] was distributed free of charge to 2500 public libraries and more than 2000 individuals. The response from individual readers has been splendid. CMH is well on its way to our first-year goal of 1,000 subscriptions. The big disappointment is the limited number of libraries that have responded. Please check with your local library. If their copy has been mislaid we will be happy to send them a replacement.

Canadian Military History has attracted a good deal of attention in the United Kingdom. We have a reciprocal promotion arrangement with the Imperial War Museum (see inside back cover) and a number of other British organizations. We will be promoting CMH in the Commonwealth and the United States during 1993.

The Autumn 1993 issue, to be published in September, will focus on the Canadian role in the Italian Campaign 1943-44. There will still be room for articles on the First World War, Korea and Peacekeeping, plus our regular features and an expanded book review section. The Spring 1994 issue will feature new articles on D-Day and the Battle of Normandy.

Please join us in developing a journal which will introduce Canadians to an important part of our history. We need your help in obtaining subscriptions and advertising, but we also want to hear from you with your own contributions or ideas about articles and features for future issues.
