Everywhere you look, people are inspired to learn, lead and leave their mark – to give their all and to give back. From meaningful staff-student relationships, to groundbreaking research projects, to the peer-to-peer support Laurier is famous for, you’ll know and feel you belong here.
Laurier’s Waterloo and Brantford campuses are on the traditional territory of the Neutral, Anishinaabe and Haudenosaunee Peoples.

Laurier Milton is located on the traditional territory of the Huron-Wendat and Haudenosaunee Peoples.

Acknowledging them reminds us of our important connection to this land where we live, learn and work. We recognize, honour and respect these nations as the traditional stewards of the lands and water on which Laurier is now present.
A student experience that inspires.

How do you know you belong here?

- You want the education and experience you need to succeed in all aspects of life – that includes a supportive university community who will be by your side from your first day to graduation and beyond.

- You work hard in the classroom but take advantage of hands-on learning opportunities to really build your skills – like co-op, volunteering, travel and field trips.

- You are curious and care about the different stories and backgrounds that make us unique, and you see communities as the thread that ties us all together.

- You know the value of university is greater than a degree and you want to be known in the classroom for your individual knowledge and needs. You sense that university is the place to explore your academic, personal and professional potential.
Laurier is a place you’ll call home the second your feet hit the Golden Hawk grounds. No matter where you choose to study – Waterloo, Brantford, or Milton – you’ll experience the welcoming, student-focused community that we’re known for. Elevating your personal and academic growth is at the heart of everything we do across all three locations.

Sights set on the sky, a career at NASA is within reach.

After completing her double major in Biology and Chemistry in spring 2022 (with a minor in Physics for good measure), Kristin was one step closer to achieving her goal of being the first person on Mars. Kristin was one of 13 undergraduate students from around the world selected to complete an intensive astronautics program through the Advanced PoSSUM Space Academy, where she is currently training in the planetary field geology program to advance our understanding of planetary evolution and extravehicular activities (EVAs).

Her rigorous training paid off - she’s awaiting a ship-date for the US Navy flight school to take to the skies as an F-35 fighter pilot. Her sights are still set on NASA – she wants to make her passion for geochemistry and astrobiology into a profession.

Laurier Astronomy professor Ionnis Haranas is a proud supporter of Kristin’s interstellar ambitions, having co-authored five research publications with her and encouraging her to apply to the PoSSUM program. Now he watches proudly as his former student takes to the skies, fueled by a desire to "benefit the future of humankind and help understand our place in the universe."

— KRISTIN C., BSc ’22
